

understand and communicate complex ideas research and analyse information assess and interpret information build empathy and understanding for different perspectives extend your intercultural understanding problem-solve and make decisions write clearly and persuasively learn about different countries, cultures and societies be an independent learner and thinker reflect on your own identity challenge bias and prejudice learn about why people behave the way they do spot fake news

gather and evaluate evidence understand how society functions

History

WHAT SKILLS CAN GIVE YOU?

formulate and win an argument understand what's going on in the world understand who or what you're voting for, and what they believe in understand cancel culture see the value in contradictory ideas understand the causes of major social change understand the order in which things happened in the past learn how to disagree respectfully think critically, and form opinions using fact and reason apply research skills to real-world problems gather, manage and present data develop fluent and considered verbal communication work out what you stand 'for' rather than just what you are 'against'

make well-informed decisions

